About the Cover

Besides being a children's book author, Theodore Seuss Geisel (writing as "Dr. Seuss") was also an avid hat collector. His love for hats showed in his many illustrations that included hats he owned. In celebration of the 75th anniversary of publishing The 500 Hats of Bartholomew Cubbins, his wife Audrey has launched a tour of some of Geisel's hats in an exhibit entitled "Hats Off to Dr Seuss!"

Kathe Gust caught up with exhibit curator Jeff Schuffman to talk about this amazing hat collection and the man who often invited dinner guests and even his editor to pick one out and play when they visited. The Dr. Seuss estate kindly gave VC permission use the cover image to introduce this issue about hats.
